

Department of Mathematics and Statistics
The University of Toledo

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics at the University of Toledo invites applications for a tenure-track position in Statistics or Biostatistics to commence Fall 2015. We are seeking exceptionally well-qualified individuals for a position intended to enhance all aspects of our educational and research programs, including collaborative research across the wide array of programs offered at the University of Toledo.

Duties include teaching courses at the undergraduate and graduate level, conducting and supervising pure and collaborative research, and engaging in departmental and professional service. The teaching load is consistent with other doctoral granting departments. Applicants must demonstrate a commitment to excellence in research and teaching, and must have a Ph.D. in Statistics, Biostatistics, or Mathematics at the time of appointment.

The Department of Mathematics and Statistics offers bachelors, masters, and Ph.D. degrees in pure and applied mathematics and statistics with a strong tradition in both pure and applied research. Our statistics group has a strong tradition of collaboration with the Colleges of Pharmacy and Medicine.

The University of Toledo is a dynamic state-supported urban university with first-class science departments and strong professional programs in engineering, law, medicine, and pharmacy. Total enrollment is over 20,000 students. Toledo is a small city with a vibrant arts community. The main campus is located in a quiet residential neighborhood. More information about the University is available on the web at <http://www.utoledo.edu>

Review of applications will begin on December 15, 2014 but the position will remain open until filled.
